Hurried out by the mob, he fell, and his little boy was so stunned as to be senseless. The preacher himself, stunned and bewildered walked on in the street, and finally reached a place of refuge, where he might leave his child, and return to see what he could do for his wife and sister. In the mean time, the mob abused the poor women in every conceivable way, -struck then with missiles of wood and iron, burnt the face and side of one of them, stripped them of their clothing, and grossly violated them, until a distant relative came and took them away to his house, and declared that they should there remain. CIRCULAR. THE Provisional Committee for premoting the erection of a City Hall in Hengkeng, desire for interests for verification with as little delay to report the progress that has been made, up to the close of the present year, in furthering the object for which they are associated. The principal difficulty connected with this undertaking has been to procure a site that should he at once suitable for the purpose, and in the gift of Government; it being obvious that the present high value of Land within the limits of the City made it impossible that any sum of meney, which the Committee could expect to command, would prove adequate if ground had to be An application for a site at the Western Corner of the Parade Ground, immediately under Measrs, A. Heard & Co.'s Office, was promptly and liberally conceded, but, before any formal grant of the Land had been made, it was fortunately discovered that difficulties, previously thought insuperable, to the eccupation of the piece of ground now partially essupied by the Harbour Master's Office, were susceptible of removal; and the Committee have the satisfaction of stacing that a resommendation for a grant of that site (undoubtedly the most eligible for the purposes of a City Mall in the whole Colony) has, with the approval of the Military Authorities, been forwarded by the local Government to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and that the position of the Drinking Fountain (presented to the City by Mr. John Bent, and new in source of erection) has been determined with special reforence to the dinjensions and situation of the proposed Building The space, which, is it confidently hoped, will be thus placed at the disposal of the Committee will enable thom to embrace, in their scheme the following accompation: ---I. A Public Hall, to be called the "ht. Andrew's Hall, in acknowledgment of a sum of Five Thousand Dollars, which has been voted to the undertaking from the surplus Funds of the late St. Androw's School. This room will be available for Public Meetings, Public Dinners, Balls, Geneerts, and other public purposes.

II. A Supper Room adjoining the Hall, and

IV. A Public Library for the objects stated by the Trustees of the Morrison Education Society in their printed Circular of the 1st May last. V. A permanent Theatre, which will encourage visits to Hongkong by musical and histrioriartists from other parts of the East, and will ubviate the necessary heavy and unsatisfactory outlay which the frequent erestion of a temporary ]

Theatre has hitherto entailed. The remainder of the space will be absorbed by the Harbour Master's Office, which will be removed from its present position to one appropriated for it in the North Eastern angle of the intended building, in accordance with the proposal submitted by the Committee to Geverament for permission to use the site which that office at present

Finished plans have not yet been prepared, and it is proposed that, at the preper time, they should be thrown open to competition, but the Committee have satisfied themselves that the space they baye applied for will be ample for earrying out the various objects enumerated above on a seale which will render the intended edifies an ornament to the City, a convenience to the public, and i every way worthy of a Colony whose rapid growth and progress are the surest proofs of its wealth, enterprise and prosperity. However comparatively easy and bloodless the success of the Federals may be, it is not the less full and signal, and of such importance as to cast all their former achievements into the shade. Bragg is said to have fallen back as far as Dalevening that he would pursue the enemy in the morning. Hecker was reported to have reached Ringgold, about 15 miles from Chattaneoga, and the upshot of it all was that the great position on Leokout Mountain and Missionary Ridge was irreparably lost to the Confederates, and that they had no great chance of a safe resting place between Dalton and their basis of operation at Atlanta. Can General Grant follow up his victory? His army, we are told has long been on half rations; it is wanting in all supplies, especially in means of transport. It is not impossible that this consideration, and the activity of the Southerners in the destruction of reads and bridges may induce advance into Georgia, and the final subjugation of the South till next spring; but in the meanwhile who can calculate the extent of this his late auecontending parties? All the great valley of Tennessee is, at last, in Federal hands. The communication between Virginia and the South-west, along that road. is lost to the Confederates, past hope. Burnside's army at Knoxville is released. and Longstreet, who was only yeterday the besieger, of whom Bragg wrote that " he held all the roads lending into Knozville, except the one between Holston and the French Broad River," will have reason to thank his good fortune if he is allowed to join Bragg before some of Grant's Generals attack him in his rear or out off his re-

The news is great in itself, but the friends of American Union exaggerate, if possible, its importance, and are ready to cry "Finis Secessia" A new despatch from General Grant is just in, in which he announces the "complete rout of the enemy," the ground encumbered with waggons caissons, and occasional pieces of artillery: 60 of these latter, at least, have been lost by the Confederates. General Grant adds that the pursuit will continue to Red Clay in the morning, place for which he was about to start himself in a few hours. Red Clay is a small post-village in Whitefield country, Georgia, a few miles in advance of Ringgold, very near the Georgia and Tennessee boundary line. It is about 16 miles to the north of Dalton, on a branch of the Eas Tennessee and Georgia Railway, and its occupation cuts off all probability of Longstreet joining Bragg, were he to attempt to fall back upon him It it difficult to estimate to its full extent the on lamity which has befallen the Southern arms Bragg and the Confederacy are not in a condition to recover the loss of the thousands of men and and of the vast material that they have lef on the field, nor is the army now on its way to Dalton likely soon to recover from the panic and disorganization into which it has been thrown while the tidings of its defeat cannot fail t strike dismay into the heart of Longstreet, and perhaps, even paralyze the arm of the hithert invincible Lee. So much has been cost at on stroke, not by actual defeat, but, most probabl with very little fighting, by an ill-projected and worse-conducted retreat. Yesterday was Thanksgiving Day, and, by wa f enlivening the solemnity, a negro regiment (the Grant's own bulletins. however, are entitled to full credit, and even if ony half of his statements were to be admitted we should have to conclude that the rout is complete and the the disaster irreparable. The number of prisoners swells now to 7,000; and even 8,000; and the dispersion of the implements of war, of course, keeps pace with the scattering of the soldiers. The Southerners throw down their arms, and seem only "longing to be speedily vauquished and captured." Some resistance was attempted at Chicamauga, but it was soon overpowered. Bragg is falling back in the direction of Red Clay, but Hooker and Palmer were already, the evening before last, close him to stop in mid career, and put off the further upon him, 10 miles boyond Chicamauga. What is more important, if true, Colonel Long's onvalry made a raid to the East Tennessee Railroad in the same night, and destroyed 15 miles of it, thus efcess, and its results on the relative position of the | feetually cutting off Longstreet's retreat, and depriving him of all hope of joining Bragg. Longstreet is likely enough to march round Knoxville, and attempt on escape into Virginia, though he would in all probability have to keep up a running fight with Burnside's lately besieged army, which would not fail to sally out of Knoxville and harass him in the rear.
